

*Free quality education (including college) for all. *To know and value themselves. *To have the desires of their hearts. *hangout spot for women to talk to other women, a nice closet to trade clothes. *To find God and through that find joy and peace. *Self-esteem and confidence (“you are a gift”). *Jobs with childcare. *To be successful leaders. *To come together and love each other. *Enough money to take care of their needs. *To know her purpose, to heal from trauma. *No more killing would go on in any of our families, that the senseless pain would stop. *Their basic needs would be met: housing food, clothes. *Free high-quality childcare. *That it was easier to survive. *Good health. *Safety. *Truth. *to be successful with what they want to do. *Someone to go to all the houses in Flint and ask – what is keeping you from reaching your top goal. *That they could afford pampering twice per year to give them the strength to go on. *To know the resources available in the county. *Peace of mind. *That they will be listened to and be safe. *That they could be physically and mentally healthy and have healthy relationships. If they didn’t have to worry about being healthy, they could work on being happy. *Reliable transportation to a steady job. *More shelters. *To love themselves and know they are worthy. *Something (a home, a car) that is theirs. *Partners to help carry the load. *A good paying job. *Hope for their children’s future. *Free education. *Peace and confidence in themselves. *To feel like they and their children will be safe. *Homes. *Better role models. *To love themselves. *Peace of mind. *Access to the supports they need to take care of themselves and their families. *Peace of mind and happiness. *A real sense of empowerment. *No lead, poison, or deception. *Love – every aspect of love – to feel it, touch it, see it, want it, and not push it away. *To know that she is enough. *Peace. *To be happy, healthy, and wise to be able to do what she needs to do for her family. *To be well. *That their needs are met. *To be safe from trafficking, abuse, and violence. *A healthy happy, and prosperous life. *To live up to her full potential and meet her basic needs. *To dare to be themselves. *Long, paid maternity leave. *Respect, acceptance, and a community. *To pursue their dreams. *Less racism, sexism, homophobia, poverty, and misogyny and more access to resources. *To be able to support themselves financially. *To be seen, heard, and believed. *That they could be successful in whatever they do. *That they come together to get and give help. *That they know they are enough. *Happy, healthy, and meaningful lives. *Peace and calm. *Someone who truly loves, teaches, and mentors them. *Financial stability. *Peace. *Joy and happiness. *That their children are healthy, safe, and educated. *A decent income to meet their basic needs. *To be content. *Decent employment that allows them to support their family. *Good jobs and to not have to worry about money. *A better tomorrow that is safe. *To be treated equally. *To have opportunities. *To have their student loans paid. *To be secure, independent, and powerful. *To feel safe and secure. *To believe in herself. *To live up to their full potential. *Sanity!

<http://www.publichealth.msu.edu/flint-research/the-flint-women-s-study>